Car tracks in the snow

The snow lies untouched,
Softening the lanes, streets and alleyways.
Making even an old, abandoned road magical.
Its enchantment takes over your heart,
But then you see the depressing sight of...
Car tracks in the snow.
You think to yourself
"Oh, how pretty the land would be,
Oh, how untouched the land would be...
If only man had not polluted it."
You step from beside the window,
Your brain whirling with mixed feelings.
And you walk away,
Excitement filling your heart,
And twinkles in your eyes,
Ready to play in the snow...

Memory Bank

Just imagine it, there was a bank for memories.
Every time there was something your brain wanted to remember,
It could go to the bank and put it in.

Just imagine it, you needed to remember something
Even as simple as your homework
Every day your brain would go to the bank and get out that memory.

But sometimes, buried right at the back of your vault would be a memory, something like the smile on the face of a friend you had not seen in a long time.

Or the way their eyes twinkled when they laughed
Things like that are hidden under lock and key in the bank.

But sometimes your brain decides to visit deeper into the vault, and you remember.

Just imagine that.

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Deeds Not Words

WE WANT
RIGHTS

Deeds not words
Deeds not words.
That's what we said,
I Millicent Fawcett
Called out as I marched:

Votes for women
Votes for women.
We want a say,
We want to talk.
I walked beside our leader:

We shall get the vote
We shall get the vote.
Emily Pankhurst believed,
That's what we wanted as we walked,
So in 1918 we got it.

Women have fought,
And they still do,
But our world is new,
They were the Suffragettes
And they made you who you are.
